President's Message

It is all about relationships...

I recently read an article about the results of the ongoing 80 year study of adult development (all male subjects [!] but I suspect it pertains to women too) at Harvard Medical School. "The really surprising finding is that our relationships and how happy we are in (those) relationships has a powerful influence on our health.... Strong relationships help to delay mental and physical decline. Taking care of your body is important, but tending to your relationships is a form of self-care too. That, I think, is the revelation." says Robert Waldinger, current Director of the study.

Who's New supports us all by providing opportunities to meet women with common interests and form new friendships. I have talked with so many members who say "Who's New saved me," Or "It helped make my transition to this new community so much easier."

Smile, say hello, talk to yourself like you would a friend, be yourself.

Hope to see you soon.

May you live with ease and grace.

MARCH LUNCHEON AND PROGRAM

Our March program will focus on the history of Women's athletics at UW Madison.

Doug Moe is a lifelong Madisonian and UW Madison graduate. He has worked as a journalist in Madison for 40+ years, as a magazine editor, newspaper columnist, freelance writer, and nonfiction author.

He spent nearly 20 years as a daily columnist, at The Capital Times and the Wisconsin State Journal as well as authored more than a dozen books.

His recent books include "Tommy: My Journey of a Lifetime," a collaboration with Tommy G. Thompson and "The Right Thing to Do: Kit Saunders-Nordeen and the Rise of Women's Intercollegiate Athletics at the University of Wisconsin and Beyond."

Current projects include collaborating with former state Sen. Fred Risser and UW Marching Band director Mike Leckrone on their autobiographies.
